Fast Little Fox

IN a den hidden deep in the woods lived a little red fox named Reddy. He had a soft white collar about his neck and a white top at the tip of his bushy red tail.

"What is it like in the world outside?" Reddy wondered.

"When you are bigger, I will show you," his mother answered.

"NOW," Reddy said. "I want to see it now!"

"No," Mrs. Fox said. "Stay at home now, while I am away."

"Now," Reddy muttered stubbornly. "Now!"

"Later," Mrs. Fox answered. "I am going hunting alone. Now stay in the den!"

She bade each of the little foxes good-bye. She braced a big branch in the doorway to fasten them in.

Reddy sat down. He said again: "I want to go out. Now!"

He pushed and tugged at the branch till he got it loose. Then out he dashed and away!

"Stop, stop!" his brothers and sisters called after him, but Reddy only laughed and shouted back: "NO!"

"Run, run, I don't like locks.

You can't stop me,

I'm a fast red fox!"

He ran and ran, till he saw Mrs. Bear, eating some honey out of some honey crocks. She called to him to stop, but Reddy only laughed and shouted back: "NO!"

"Run, run, leave your crocks.

You can't stop me,

I'm a fast red fox!"

Mrs. Bear licked the honey from her paws and ran after him, but she could not catch him.

Reddy ran and ran, far from the den. He danced and pranced, sniffing the cool, fresh wind from the pines. "The world smells good, and it is pretty," he said.

But he wanted somebody to play with. Reddy saw some brown-and-speckled partridges, but they flew away when he tried to play with them.

He saw a rabbit with stiff long ears sticking straight up, but he leaped away when Reddy tried to play with him.

Lonesome and sad Reddy felt, because nobody would play with him.

"A bunny rabbit, birds in flocks.

They hid from me.

I'm a sad red fox!"

He walked and walked. He felt thirsty and hungry.

The stars came out and the moon came out, and Reddy was very cold and alone.

"Who—Whooooo!"

Reddy jumped. An owl in a tree blinked down at him. She jumped and flapped her wings. "Who—Whooooo!"

Reddy ran. He ran and ran. Slap! A branch of a tree slapped at his collar.

Tear-r-r! A blackberry briar tore at his coat.

Plop! A dark tree root caught at his heel, and Reddy fell down.

"Mom-my!" Reddy yelled, as he scrambled up. He ran and ran, as fast as he could, back to his den.

Mrs. Fox was looking for him.

"Mommy!" he cried, rubbing his nose against her soft fur coat.

She nuzzled her nose against his neck, where his little soft white collar was. She gave him some supper, then tucked him in bed.

Reddy was very sleepy. He closed his eyes tightly and said to himself:

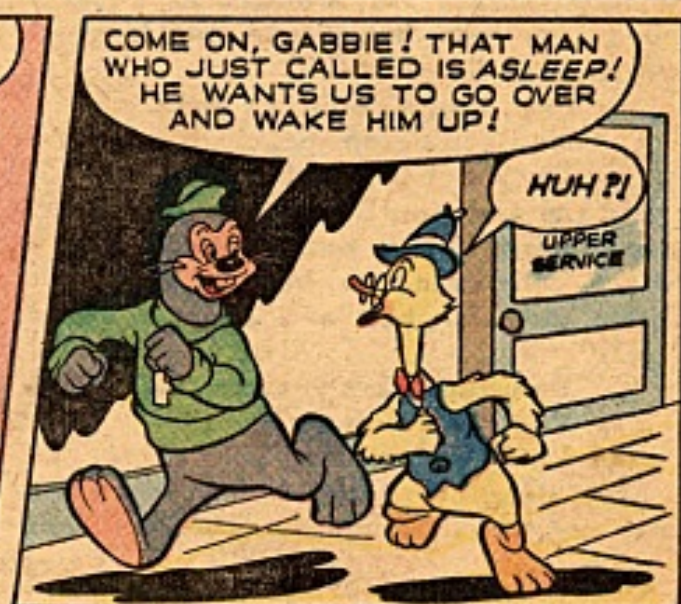

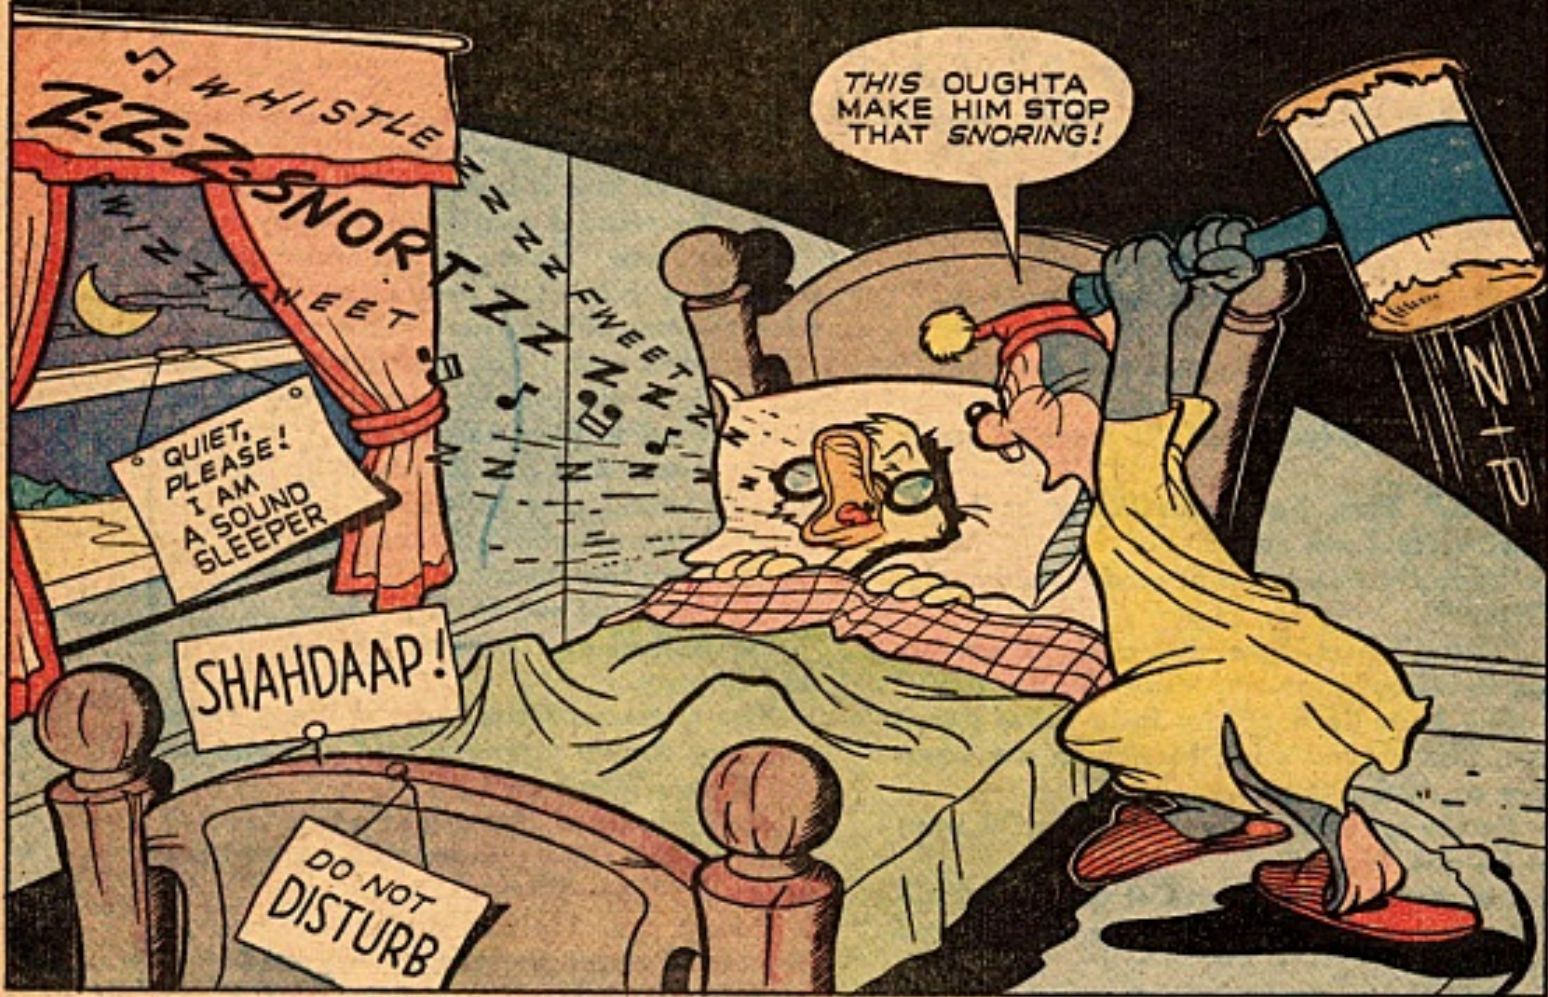

"Sleep, sleep, warm as wool socks.

I'm home where I like it,

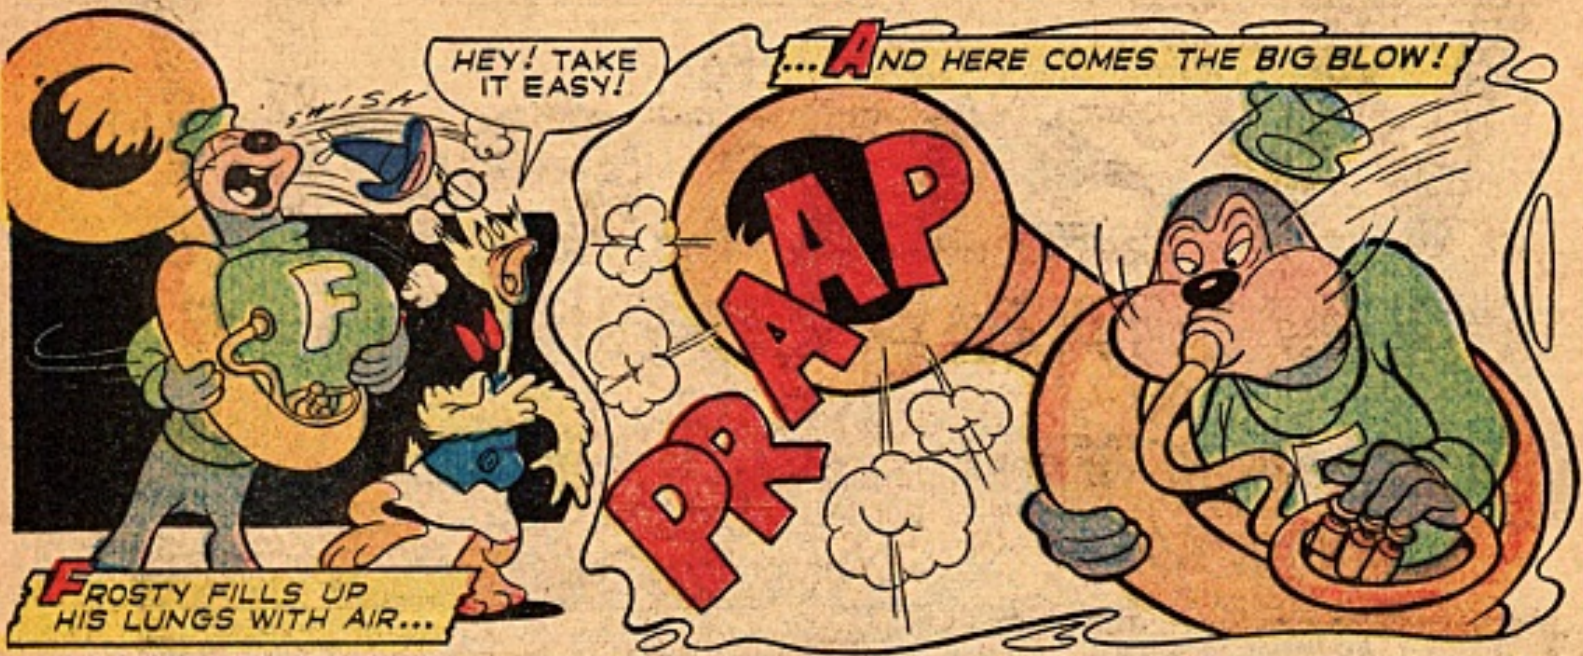

A sleepy red fox!"

AHH! GOOD OLD JAMES...THE MOST DEPENDABLE DOORMAN I EVER HAD!

JUST A DOORMAN! OHHH!

LITTLE Fraidy Colt came loping along from the meadow, humming to himself. This is what he was humming:

"A bright summer morning,
No clouds in the sky.
It's nice to see daisies.
It's nice to skip by!"

He loped toward the barnyard.

Back in the barnyard, everybody was laughing—everybody except Mollie Chick. They were laughing about Fraidy Colt.

"Ho-ho! Ho-ho!" Johnny Calf chuckled.

"Tee-hee! Tee-hee!" Susie Hen giggled.

All the little pigs laughed, "Ho-hee! Ho-hee!"

Everybody laughed except Mollie Chick, who had a kind heart.

"Sh-h!" Sally Goose warned, for Fraidy was coming.

They all hid back of the tractor—everybody except Mollie Chick.

Fraidy Colt came loping along, swishing his tail. Fraidy Colt loped up near the tractor, humming his song.

"BOO!" Sally Goose cried, jumping out at him.

"Oh! Oh, oh!" Fraidy Colt cried, he was so scared. He ran into the barn.

"Ho, ho! Ho, ho!" they all laughed at him—everybody except Mollie Chick.

Fraidy Colt hid in the barn. He was not humming, he was too sad. Sad he was, not to be brave.

The other animals kept on laughing. They laughed so hard that they did not see something.

But Fraidy saw it through a crack in the door. Fraidy Colt, he saw the something! Stealthily slipping into the barnyard was a big wildcat with great green eyes.

Stealthily silent it crept toward Mollie. Little Mollie's back was turned. Nobody saw it but Fraidy. All the others were busy laughing.

The wildcat stretched out its claws, long on the ends of its big paws.

Fraidy Colt began to shake, he was so scared.

Closer and closer the wildcat crept. Closer and closer, and nobody saw him—nobody saw him but . . .

FRAIDY DASHED OUT!

"SSSSSS!" snapped the wildcat.

And then they all saw him. And all were afraid!

"SSSSSS!" snapped the wildcat. He shot out his claws. He arched his fierce back.

"WHIN—NEEE!" Fraidy Colt roared. He showed his big teeth. He lifted his heels. Fraidy Colt towered above the fierce wildcat. "WHIN—NEEEE!" Fraidy Colt roared.

And the wildcat could not snap any more. He was too scared! The great fierce wildcat turned and ran.

Fraidy Colt chased him back to the woods. "WHIN—NEEEE!" he roared, again and again. The wildcat disappeared into the woods.

Then Fraidy Colt came loping back, back to the barnyard, where everyone cheered him. What a great cheering! Everyone cheered for the brave little colt.

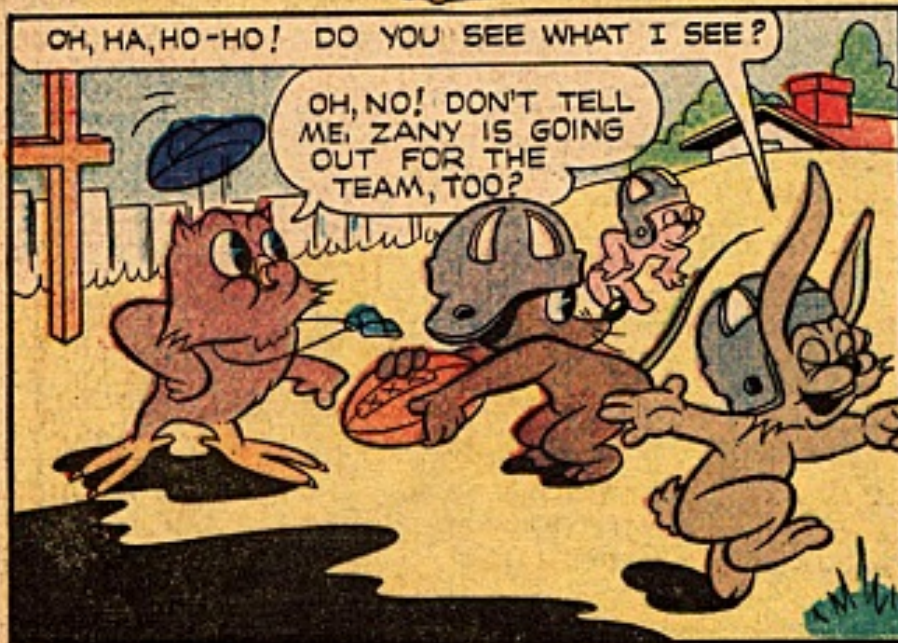

And the brave little colt just nodded and smiled, then started humming, for he was not sad any more. This is what he was humming.

"A bright summer morning,
No clouds in the sky;
I chased a fierce wildcat,
As easy as pie!"

Fraidy Colt was not afraid any more. He was just thirsty. So he loped over to the water trough and took a drink.

Everybody knows that the Otterbird is the biggest living bird. But did you know that it can run 30 miles an hour—that its kick can kill a man—that it has the largest eyes of any land creature?

In an ordinary woodland pond you can find an amazing variety of fascinating creatures. Your Nature Program tells you what to look for, how to go about it.

Discover awesome prehistoric beasts, like the Stegosaurus—fierce feet of armor-plated might, with a brain no larger than a walnut!

Neutral color pictures show you unusual creatures like the Snowshoe Rabbit. In summer, he is the same color as his tundra home...

But when autumn comes, the weather gets colder, and he starts to change color. By the time the ground is covered with snow...

...he has become entirely white. Perfectly camouflaged once again, he is "invisible" to his enemies!

Which is the Fragile Flower and which is the Flashing animal? On the left is the lovely Moon of the Tulip Tree. But the "Mystery" on the right is a hungry Sea Anemone, and its "jungle" are waving tentacles, reaching out for prey!

See the mysterious, exciting life of Nature after dark—the great owls who hunt their prey in almost total darkness—all the strange creatures who live by night!

Meet the lovable children of Nature—like the ship, trademarking Kalle, the model for the original "Teddy bear."

Collect a "Museum-at-Home" of buttons like the lovely Tiger Swallowtail.

Explore the underwater world through the Nature Program's color camera!
